After lessons, teachers always give students some exercises to complete, called "Homework". But study in class is enough, why do students have to do another work at home? First, homework helps students reinforce the lesson they learnt at school. They do exercises to revise knowledge and enhance memorizing skill. Some students easily forget what they have learnt after coming home so teacher give them homework to help them revise, encourage memory and improve their learning skill. For instance, students do homework at home so they can remember longer, and then they can utilize what they learnt to do examinations ~~and~~ and even utilize in reality. Second, doing homework ~~not~~ builds responsibility for students. When students do their homework actively, students are self-discipline revising and encouraging their own knowledge. It helps students to take responsibility of completing their work for now and in the farthest future, they will also be active and responsible for all of their activities. Finally, homework isn't only help students revise lessons, but also encourage students to enhance, improve and boost their knowledge. It's so meaningful and effective to ~~the~~ student's choice, future and job!
